

South London

Family tree

You will need ...

- Memories (talk to older relatives)
- Old family photos

Get a large sheet of paper or cardboard and print in the names of your immediate family on it with your children. Add dates of births, deaths, and marriages. Go back through as many generations as you know about.

Research together the ones you do not know by asking older relatives.

If possible, add photos to your family tree. Look for family resemblances and compare clothes and hairstyles of today with those of your ancestors

Encourage your children's awakening interest and encourage your children to talk to their older relatives about the 'olden days' and their personal memories of other relatives so those memories are not lost.

Perhaps all of this might inspire you to organise a family reunion!

